

Hey everyone, my name is Dinh-Hy Truong
(pronounced Din (silent hyphen) hee trung), but I usually go by Vince.

I am your 2011-2012 Vice President of Public Relations.

Currently I am 17 years of age and a junior at Coral Springs High School. I am an active member in many clubs such as Philosophy, Business Professionals of America, Interact, and of course, FCCLA. You'll catch me spending most of my time practicing dance (hip hop, of course), remixing/producing songs, doing math homework (being Asian), or, most commonly, playing video games.

There is so much within FCCLA to take part in. I have been active in FCCLA for 2 years and participated in two events, talent (where in 2010 my dance group and I placed first) and Advocacy (In which we secured the position of alternates at the National Leadership Conference). I am in FCCLA now because I want to become a stronger person and leader; someone with a voice, someone with a reason. FCCLA gave me a reason, to become a leader, and it gave me my voice, to shout across the world my ideas and my beliefs. And now I am here to shout to you the belief that you can become a leader. That anyone can. Originally your stereotypical quite math kid, I (thanks to FCCLA) have become someone that leads events, leads people, and most importantly, leads myself.

Can you lead yourself?
